Song Ge, Chief Development Officer of mainframe database software in IBM(China)

2003-2007, gained Ph.D in Economics & Management in UIBE;

1999-2002, gained Master's degree in International Business School of UIBE;

1992-1996, gained Bachelor's degree in Xidian University;

In 2000, joined the China development center of IBM and leading his team in the research and development of IBM global e-commerce;

Once served as senior manager of product development, vice-president of IBM and executive assistant of general manager of China development center;

Once won the excellent manager award of China development center of IBM and technological innovation award.

Also served as the chairman of inter-institutional collaboration committee, principal of female technical community of IBM Greater China Region, dean of software and system delivery department in the School of Software in Tianjin University.